MASTER'S MESSAGE

Brethren,

The most vital investment we can make in the future of our Lodge is the active mentorship of our new candidates and junior Brothers. Initiating a man is only the beginning; we must guide him through the quarries until he becomes a proficient and enlightened Master Mason.

We are currently blessed with men seeking light, and it is the responsibility of the entire Lodge to ensure they find it. Mentorship is not solely the job of the assigned mentor. That duty belongs to every Master Mason. When a new Brother sees you on the sidelines, introduces himself, and learns from your experience, he gains a sense of belonging that ritual alone cannot provide. I urge you to sit with our newer members during collation, explain the etiquette of the Craft, and answer their questions with patience.

Moreover, our degree work this month requires your physical presence, especially with our scheduled Official Visit. Also, there is a profound difference between receiving a degree in a near-empty room versus a room filled with supportive Brothers. Your attendance is a silent but powerful message to the candidate that he is joining something significant and supported by a strong community.

Fraternally,
Richard Alam
